General Comments:

Alex is an excellent practicum student. His previous experience working with students shows in all situation in the classroom and throughout the building.

Alex took initiative to work with students. He did not have to be asked or told he just knew what to do.

His lessons were age appropriate and well thought out.

Suggestions for Improvement:	You started your lesson by saying your behavior expectations. Great work. Take a few more seconds to let them calm down after the fun activity. You have an excellent demeanor with the students. You are positive, yet have expectations. Your lesson plan included excellent assessment opportunities. You included both formative and summative opportunities to show individual measurably. Suggestions: *Classroom management is something you will continually be working on throughout your career. You have an excellent mentor in Mrs. Perrin. Try out things that will work for you. What voice level are you comfortable with?

*Group work can be tricky. Continue to work on managing all groups. You have a great baseline, as what I saw today was wonderful.

Suggestions for Improvement:

Your lesson started with a review of point of view. You did a great job of including all of the students during the review. Your instruction was explicit and moved at a good pace.

During the small group project, your movement was excellent. The activity was hands on and by using colored pencils had an element of fun (something out of the ordinary).

You had excellent time management. This is important as if the lesson gets too long, the students will become un-engaged. Good job!

Good work doing a wrap up-even though it got a bit rushed.

Suggestion:

*Create an anchor chart or other visual so your back is not towards the class as you are writing on the board

*Shel's poem is fun. Perhaps use the "overhead" to project on the board. This will also give the students a visual.

*Your directions for the activity were a bit long. GOOD you went back and reviewed the expectations!

Suggestions for Improvement:

Keep up the great work in this area. I appreciate your professionalism when communicating (email, in person). You look like a teacher and act like a teacher.

Mrs. Swanson made a point to inform me how amazing you have been doing with the students. Continue to foster this relationship.
